Tonight's Play—"In Old Kentucky."

The above named great production will be given at the opera house tonight. When a play runs ten years and still draws as large audiences and elicits as hearty applauses as even, there must be some merit in it. This is the record achieved by that popular American melodrama "In Old Kentucky," which is now in its eleventh year and seems to have ingratiated itself firmly in the favor of theatre goers all over the country. "In Old Kentucky" certainly gives the playgoer the worth of his money. It is one of those plays that, like "The Old Homestead" never grows old. Who in the whole mass of playgoers in America has not seen it? And yet, it goes on, drawing crowded houses season after season and reaping a harvest for its manager, Jacob Litt.

This year Mr. Litt, to fitly mark the conclusion of the first ten years of "In Old Kentucky's" prosperity, has organized and placed upon the road the most sumptuous and costly production of the play that has ever been made. At an outlay of $20,000, he has had prepared a new and beautiful scenic outfit that will surpass anything ever heretofore seen in connection with this piece.

The Two Jeffersons.

From the present outlook, the name of Jefferson will live on in the history of the stage. On Wednesday evening Jan. 20th, the theatre going public of Cairo will see the two worthy sons of the "Dean of the American Stage," Joseph Jefferson, Jr., and William Jefferson. They will present "The Rivale," which has been selected by their father as a play suitable for them to star in. The presentation of the same will be given by a carefully selected company to support these worthy young gentlemen. Joseph, Jr., will be the Sir Lucius O'Trigger, and William W. "Fighting" Boh Acres. The supporting company includes Messrs. John Jack, Guy Combs, Percy Plunkett, James Lewis, and the Misses Follott, Paget, Blanche Bender, Meta Greene and others, all members of the original Jefferson Co.

CHICKENS AND BEES

Cairo Putting Up An Extensive Plant for Raising Both—New Goose Pond.

Mr. W. F. Woodbury, of this city, has for some months been engaged in having extensive and costly improvements made upon a 20-acre piece of ground which he owns near Goose Pond, a short distance above this city.

Perhaps the most important feature is a fine house two stories and basement with many rooms and windows, and built with the modern conveniences which he will occupy as a home. Another building is a large barn, also of modern design and arranged to meet the needs of a well-kept farm. He has two cisterns to supply water, but will have an artesian well sunk and a tower built with a large tank to which water will be supplied by a gasoline engine. This water will be conducted through the house and barn, and all over the ground for the purpose of irrigation and to supply the needs of the living things with which he proposes to stock the place. Mr. Woodbury is a chicken fancier and he breeds bee culture as well, also truck farming and flowers. He will have all these to engage his attention when his plans shall have been completed and will have as pleasant a home as can be had anywhere in the state.

HARNESS THIEF CAUGHT.

Some one stole a good set of harness from Thistlewood & Co., yesterday morning. The theft was a bold one. The harness was taken from a buggy which stood just inside the yard at the warehouse on Railroad street, during the forenoon.

Night Sargeant McNamara and Officer Hoagland last night captured a young man who gave his name as Harry Jackson and he is said to be the thief. He took the harness to O'Donley's place at 1261 Commercial avenue and tried to sell them. Not being able to dispose of them he left the place and was later captured at the Union station. He was playing the deaf mute game and carried printed appeals for aid on his person.

PROMINENT MAN DEAD.

By the Associated Press.

Lacrosse, Wis., Jan. 8.—Jesse R. Williams, a pioneer prominent in early history of Wisconsin is dead aged 78 years.

"The way to a man's heart is through his stomach," an old saying meaning that to win a man you must feed him well.

If this is not true, it is still true in another sense that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. Many persons imagine that they have heart disease when it is only indigestion.

Tale is how it comes about. The stomach distended by gas, crowds the heart and gives the feeling that the trouble is in the heart.

If you don't know that you have heart trouble, try using Walther's Peppermint Port and see if it does not relieve you.
